KIRK'S VOICE (over)
Captain's log. Star Date 5501.3.
We are awaiting the planet Latria
VII.

KIRK'S VOICE (over)
Our mission is to discover the characteristics of this of a six month science exam. Voice
contact having yielded nothing.

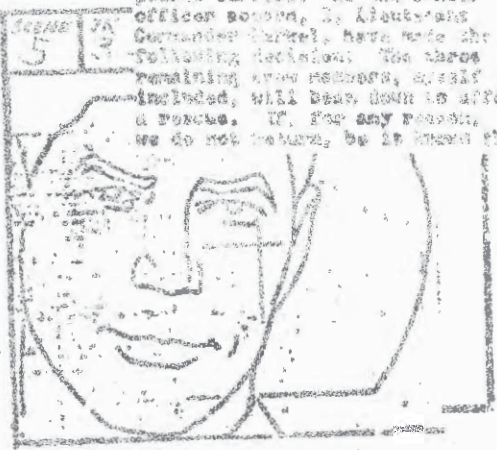

Spock
The need was apparently desperate.

a landing party beamed aboard to see if the deserted ship's log and computers could give us
any information.

It is now thirty-two minutes
since our last contact with the three members of our crew on the planet surface. As the senior officer aboard, I, Lieutenant Commander Trelk, have made the following decision: The three remaining crew members, as well
included, will beam down to effect
a rescue. If, for any reason, we do not return, be it known that...

KIRK

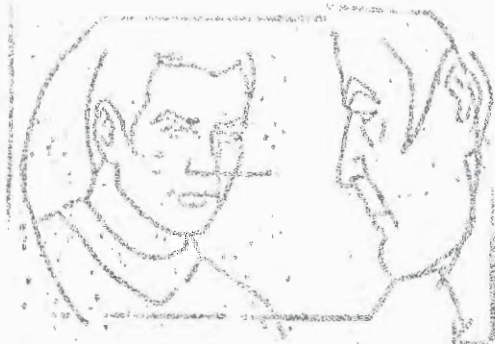

It was against all orders!

Spock

The Trelk was the best

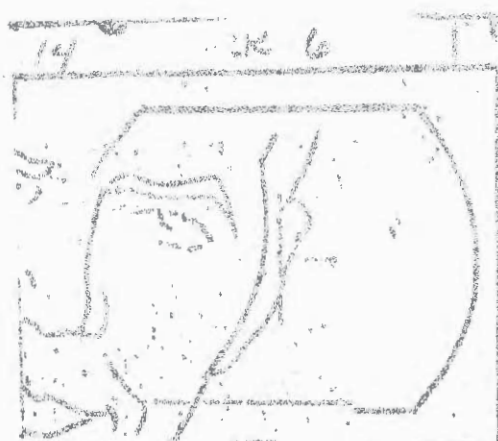

ARAX
Hence, that's not helping the situation.

McCoy
Sorry, Jim.

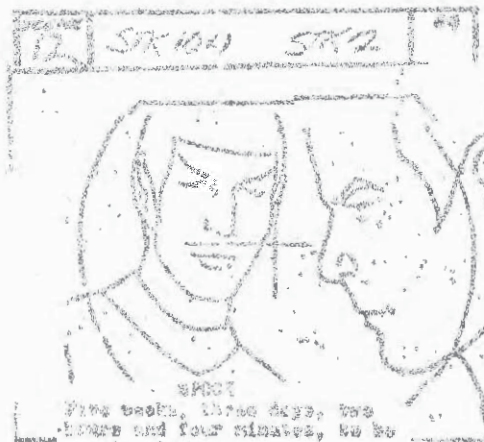

ARAX
According to their log, they beamed down six weeks ago...

ARAX
It will take not long to do a scan of the area. I want

ARAX
Mr. Spock, what can we expect to find on Lambda VII?

SPOCK
Five weeks, three days, two hours and four minutes, to be exact, sir.

ARAX
Regardless of no, Mister Spock.
(to McCoy)
Planetary life forms?

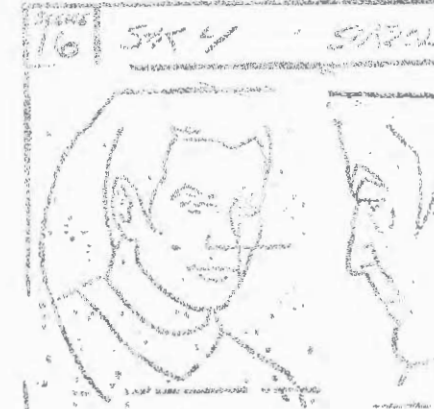

McCoy
What if the planet has life?

SPOCK
It's a class M planet...gravity earth normal...atmosphere earth normal. There is no previous information available except that which the survey ship logged
before her crew left her.

SPOCK
It certainly can support life forms. But I cannot speculate on what type without further data. Mr. Arax is conducting a sensor scan now.

ARAX
Because they may not be dead.
We have to find out.

ELSON
That's why we're here, Elson.
